“Learning Without Frontiers is the ‘Davos’ of the global education industry not because it attracts the leaders of today but because it attracts the leaders of tomorrow” Lopa Patel MBE

In 2012 LWF moves to Olympia creating a unique environment that provides a compelling glimpse into the future and what a learning environment may look like. With inspiring talks from an unprecedented line-up of some of the worlds most renowned thought leaders from the education, digital media and entertainment sectors you will be participating in an entirely new discussion about learning futures and how to affect positive change.

Since 2004 Learning Without Frontiers (LWF) has presented some of the most challenging, forward-thinking conferences on the future of learning and the impact of new digital technologies on society. Accurately predicting trends in the adoption of mobile, video games, social media and other disruptive technologies as important new tools for learning whilst providing a vital forum and global community for sharing knowledge, experiences and practice, LWF has become the must attend conference and networking event for those keeping ahead of the curve.

Who should attend?

If you're a leader, policy maker, innovator or inspired practitioner working in education or in an organisation seeking to positively disrupt entrenched thinking then LWF is THE conference and meeting place for YOU.
